SOULFUL ECHOES: UNVEILING THE RHYTHM AND BLUES OF LONDON

MUSICIAN

Dice Phoenix

LOCATION: VAUXHALL STATION TIME: 19:00PM

On my 20th birthday I ever heard this young singer sing! Her stage performance has been selling out in the background - that's me in a trap. I'd went to a bar in north London, very low-profile spot, but it had a few talented people performing. I was there to see a friend perform. I was sitting in the back of the room. You know what? I would like to do a few projects with them young lady. If I remember clearly, she was wearing a blue dress. She had the looks and everything. It was nice to see a young singer who could change the way people look at her.

WEAR ONE

After making a few plans I had to decide. Due to lockdown I went to a bar she was working on, and I chose to stay in the back. I was asked if I wanted to put on our social media platforms. The first time we worked together was at Headliners in Vauxhall Station. It was a nice scenario with Disney restaurants nearby. I was asked to sing a few songs. I called My Journey, which seemed perfect for me. It's about finding myself and finding our identity. It is rare that ever sing while walking. However, that never stopped her. She was still smiling and continued performing despite the bad weather.

WEAR ONE

I was in my element as she opened up and showed her beautiful, creative energy toward our project. We then started to work on it and I helped her with other collaborations, and I hope we will be able to work together again. I am a young singer, and stay woke, she will be the one to tell for sure.

I had a total of five models, each playing different roles in the photo shoot. To ensure smooth coordination, I created a storyboard and had detailed notes to guide me since I was working alone.

The models involved in the shoot were Han-rietta, Nel Marie, Chrissy Q, Melanie, and comedian Anthony A12. I had also planned for another model to join, but unfortunately, they couldn't make it due to transportation issues caused by disrupted train services.

The shoot took place at the beginning of March 2020, during a time when the world was becoming increasingly aware of the emerging COVID pandemic. The streets were already starting to become deserted, and I couldn't help but question the rapidity and relentlessness of the situation.

Despite the circumstances, my very first video shoot turned out to be a great success. Everyone involved acted professionally, and the results spoke for themselves. I made sure to pay each person in cash, expressing my gratitude by including a small letter of appreciation along with the payment. This gesture of appreciation would become a recurring practice throughout my journey, as it represents our identity and sets us apart from others.

As the world seemed to be on the brink of chaos, I felt like I was just beginning to truly live. I realized that as long as my heart kept beating, it was never too late to pursue my purpose. It was time to start the next chapter, and I was ready for it.

Facing difficulties in securing dates with established photographers, I decided to switch things up and started working with new, young talents who were eager to learn and collaborate on our project as photographers and videographers.

Just as a warning before we start, the more English you go the more scarce English becomes. I recommend having some basic knowledge (read hogenshi and katakana) to go on this adventure. At any rate, just be prepared to get into miscommunication situations, and to get stared at, a lot. While some foreigners do live in northern Ibaraki, there aren't many. And if you look a certain way or dress a certain way, you will get stared at, pointed at, or yelled at. But people aren't doing this to seem threatening; they are doing it out of naivete and curiosity. Students will probably stare at you to see if you are their ALT.

What Can You Do to Be Someone Else's Safety Net?

Children are dependent on the trusted adults around them to meet their needs. This puts a different level of pressure on parents and teachers:

- What can you do as a teacher or staff if you see irregularity in one of your students?
- How do you act when it's actually time to say something?

There is such a thing as too late. If you notice any change or irregularity in the behavior of a child, it is important to trust yourself to notice and report it to your manager as soon as possible. See guidelines set in KA Child Safeguarding Policy and Sexual Harassment Policy for more details.

The topic of safety and security is highly sensitive and it requires a balanced team, especially in an intercultural context. The feeling of safety and security is based on many factors, including our past experience, and for KA and KAIS alike, urgency, transparency, and nuance are key factors in finding the right balance between safety and security of our learning community and workplace.

As the common analogy of putting your own oxygen mask on first in case of an emergency on an airplane, we must always remember to put our own safety first. Here are some high-risk variables that make many of us living abroad experience short-term anxiety and/or psychosocial deficiencies:

- Living alone
- Living abroad
- Living away from family
- Not having a social and medical support system nearby

We need to look out for one another.

Connecting with a Trusted Health Service Provider

Thanks to the wisdom of the KA community, we have a growing list of health professionals who can speak English in and around Tokyo.

Whether it is for regular checkups or for a health concern you have been putting off, there is undoubtedly a needed level of comfort in knowing that you can speak to a health professional in a language you feel comfortable in.

For those of us who are moving to Japan or are already here, there are many ways to lay in setting up a foundation for living abroad. Whether you're just starting to settle into your life in Tokyo or you've been here for over 10 years, having a primary care doctor could mean the difference between a smooth transition or not. If you have specific seasonal allergies or that your appointment to see a specialist could be fast-tracked by the referral letter they write. They can help you keep track of your recurring needs and provide you with a resource for navigating your new community.

Even if you don't have any standing health concerns, an internal doctor or naka is the general practitioner you would want to build trust with.

Are you set up with a trusted doctor? Please submit a response to the "English-Speaking Service Providers" questionnaire on the dashboard. We will work with your employer to see what the insurance that a colleague needs now or in the future.

Types of Fasts

NORMAL FAST

A normal fast is the abstaining from solid food and water. This would be the type of fast given to you by your doctor if you need it. Intermittent Fasting (Ex:28). An absolute fast is when you do not eat or drink anything at all for a certain period of time. Fruits and vegetables are allowed.

Note: If you are taking any type of medications, make sure to talk to your doctor before changing your regimen.

Remember: The purpose of fasting has less to do with food rather than with setting yourself apart for a specific period of time (as God, appears to prefer).
